

Six hikers enjoyed the reds and yellows of fall November 1, on the Rock Creek Loop trail, a segment of the Cumberland Trail. It was a brisk sunny morning when we started out but it turned out to be a warm sunny day. Birds were real noisy as they followed the sun's rays from tree top to tree top in order to keep warm. You could peer through the forest and spot a bright yellow or a bright red tree framed in green foliage. We had lunch on the bluff and gazed into the colorful gorge. We saw a black snake who didn't want to bother with us. Hikers were Esther Nunley, leader, Sheri Stewart, Jane Bohannon, Ruth Gafford, and Sandra and Jerry Liner.
